The core idea was simple yet profound: repurpose discarded barbed wire—often a symbol of division, pain, and conflict—into a unifying, playful object. The process involved:

- Collecting scrap barbed wire from abandoned military sites or destroyed fences

- Bending and shaping the wire into a makeshift baseball, or alternatively, crafting a ball-like object with tightly wound wire or cloth wrapped around segments of wire

- Teams: Typically 2-4 players per side, often children or teenagers
- Pitching and Batting: One player pitched the wire ball, or it was thrown by hand
- Running Bases: Using rocks, footprints, or makeshift markers
- Scoring: Counts based on hits and runs, with flexible rules to accommodate the informal setting

The emphasis was on participation and enjoyment rather than competition, fostering a sense of normalcy and camaraderie.
