While individual contributions from each scholar have enriched negotiation literature, their combined approach emphasizes:

- The importance of interpersonal relationships
- The strategic decision-making involved
- The psychological underpinnings that influence negotiation behavior
- The ethical considerations and fairness

This integrated perspective has been widely adopted in academic curricula, corporate training, and conflict resolution practices.

Lewicki, Saunders, and Barry emphasize viewing negotiation as an ongoing process that involves:

- Building relationships
- Managing interests
- Communicating effectively
- Addressing power dynamics
- Maintaining ethical standards

This process-oriented view encourages negotiators to focus on long-term outcomes and reputation, rather than solely on immediate gains.

- Their concern for own outcomes
- Their concern for relationship quality

The interplay between these concerns influences negotiation strategies, such as collaborative, competitive, or avoidant approaches.

3. Integrative and Distributive Negotiation

The framework differentiates between:

- Distributive Negotiation: Zero-sum, where parties compete over a fixed resource
- Integrative Negotiation: Win-win, where parties collaborate to expand the value of the deal

Lewicki, Saunders, and Barry advocate for mastering both styles, with an emphasis on shifting toward integrative strategies when possible.
